

I think the number of school shootings should be evident enough that there is way too much violence on TV. Copycat crimes are on the rise. The age of children committing crimes is getting younger and younger. The argument that it is just entertainment, is flawed. I am in my 40's, and vividly remember a disturbing scene from a movie I saw as a young child. That scene was mild in comparison to what children see today.